

Kaivaryn for SpotOn businesses

What it is. If a restaurant already runs SpotOn, Kaivaryn is straightforward. It reads the sales report the team already downloads from SpotOn and shows the owner, in dollars, where money is slipping away. Then it tracks what the team actually gets back.

What an owner sees

- Comps, discounts and voids running above the restaurant's own usual rate
- Refunds that jump compared with the prior two months
- Missed calls during busy hours, valued at the restaurant's own average check
- Delivery charges and unbilled balances that never got followed up
- Staffing and busywork that cost hours every week

Each item comes with the numbers behind it and an owner assigned to follow up. Anything Kaivaryn finds is labeled an estimate. Only amounts the team records count as money won back, each with a name and a date.

How it works with SpotOn today

1. Someone downloads one report from the SpotOn Dashboard (Reports → Custom Views → Orders Per Day → Download CSV). Same kind of export the restaurant already uses.
2. That file is imported into Kaivaryn. Every column match is shown before anything is saved.
3. Kaivaryn compares the last 30 days with the restaurant's own prior 60 days and flags what changed.
4. The owner decides what to act on. Nothing runs and nobody is contacted without the owner's approval.

No new hardware. No SpotOn password. No changes to SpotOn or card processing. Kaivaryn only reads the file it's given.

Being straight about the connection. SpotOn doesn't have an open API. A live data connection is only for companies SpotOn approves. Kaivaryn is not a SpotOn integration partner today, so the report download is how the data gets in. Kaivaryn is not affiliated with, endorsed by, or sponsored by SpotOn. SpotOn is named only because the product works with SpotOn's standard sales export.
